THE HISTORY OF GRAHAM WATCHES

The Graham watch brand traces its roots back to the 17th century and is named after George Graham, an influential English clockmaker and inventor known as the “father of the chronograph.” George Graham revolutionized timekeeping by inventing the deadbeat escapement and mercury pendulum. The modern Graham brand pays homage to his legacy by creating innovative and high-quality Swiss watches, blending classic horological craftsmanship with contemporary design. Known for their bold aesthetics and exceptional precision, Graham watches are a true testament to the art of fine watchmaking.
