THE HISTORY OF IWC WATCHES

Founded in 1868 by American watchmaker Florentine Ariosto Jones in Schaffhausen, Switzerland, the International Watch Company (IWC) merged Swiss craftsmanship with advanced American manufacturing techniques. Known for producing high-quality, precise timepieces, IWC introduced iconic collections like the Pilot's Watch and the Portugieser. Over the decades, it earned a reputation for innovation, including creating robust watches for aviation and diving. Today, IWC remains a leader in luxury watchmaking, blending tradition and technology.
