Rolex watches are designed and built to last

What's Included in a Rolex Service?

When you choose We Fix Any Watch for your Rolex service, you can expect a thorough, comprehensive service that includes everything your Rolex needs to function like new again.

Before beginning any repairs or servicing, our experts carefully inspect your Rolex for any visible or hidden issues. We use specialized tools to detect potential problems like moisture damage, worn-out parts, or irregularities in the movement. The watch is then cleaned to remove dirt, oil, and other contaminants that can affect its performance.

The heart of your Rolex is its movement, and we understand how important it is to maintain its precision. Our technicians carefully disassemble the movement, clean each component with the utmost care, and lubricate the necessary parts to ensure it operates smoothly. This process ensures that your watch's accuracy is restored to Rolex's exacting standards.

THE HISTORY OF ROLEX WATCHES

Rolex was founded in 1905 by Hans Wilsdorf and Alfred Davis in London, England. The company started out as a watch dealer, importing Swiss movements and casing them in quality cases. In 1908, Wilsdorf registered the trademark “Rolex” which would become one of the most recognizable brand names in the world.

Rolex revolutionized watchmaking with several groundbreaking innovations, including the waterproof Oyster case in 1926 and the self-winding Perpetual rotor in 1931. Iconic models like the Submariner (1953), Datejust (1945), and GMT-Master (1954) became benchmarks for functionality and style. Known for their durability, Rolex watches accompanied explorers to the peaks of Mount Everest and the depths of the Mariana Trench, demonstrating unparalleled reliability.

Today, Rolex remains a symbol of luxury and achievement, synonymous with precision craftsmanship and timeless design. Owned by the Hans Wilsdorf Foundation, Rolex produces its watches in-house, ensuring exceptional quality. The brand’s enduring legacy continues to set the standard in the watchmaking industry, celebrated worldwide for its innovation and prestige.
